Voters stun board president, county school superintendent

BY RICHARD MEEK AND
MARY G. SEILEY

Hancock County voters authored two stunning upsets in Tuesday's primary election.

Voters dethroned two-term Board of Supervisor president Mike Ladner and ousted Superintendent of Education Myrna Bourgeois.

Challenger Philip Moran garnered 739 votes, or 50 percent, to avoid a runoff with Ladner. Moran will face Republican David Depreo in the Nov. 7 general election.

Bourgeois lost to former Hancock High School Principal Donald Hillman by nearly 300 votes. Hillman captured 2,047 votes, as compared to Bourgeois' 1776. Hillman will face former Hancock County Superintendent Terrell Randolph in November.

Neither Ladner or Bourgeois were available for comment.

In another surprise, challenger Dirk Dedeaux forced State Senator Harry Frierson Jr. into an Aug. 29 runoff. Dedeaux drew 24 more votes (930-906) than Frierson. The winner will face William Frisbie in November.

On the Democratic side, Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson garnered 54.7 percent of the vote and avoided a runoff with Waveland Assistant Fire Chief Steve Garber. Garber, with 43 percent of the vote, presented the biggest challenge to Peterson since the sheriff was elected in 1979.

Tax Assessor Edward Murtagh received a voter approval mandate with 72 percent of the vote against challenger Joseph Bermond. Murtagh retains his position as he is running unopposed in the November election.

Bay St. Louis City Clerk Kay Johnson was victorious in her first attempt at a political race. Johnson defeated Michael Schaefer in the Republican primary for Circuit Clerk. She will face either Timothy Kellar or Jimmy Ladner, who are involved in a runoff in the Democratic primary on Aug. 29.

Beach parking lot shrinks

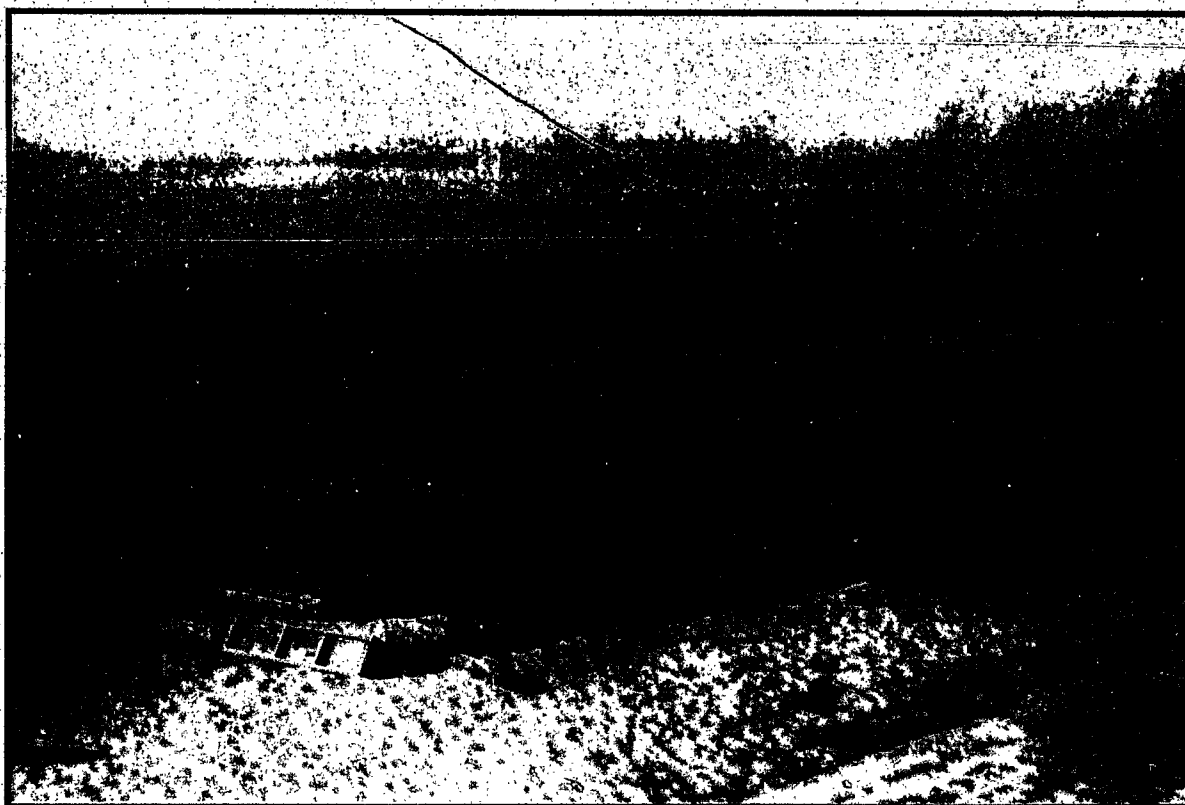

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The beachfront parking lot in downtown Bay St. Louis shrank Monday, while it's still under construction.

With very little discussion, the Board of Supervisors agreed to whack 30 spaces off the lot, leaving it the same size as another facility planned for Waveland: 50 spaces.

Project Engineer William Mitchell raised the possibility of downsizing the Bay St. Louis lot by saying there's been a question raised of whether 80 spaces are necessary for the lot being built at Beach Boulevard and Washington Street.

Jubilee lodging protest

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Hancock County Tax Assessor Eddie Murtagh meets today with officials of Jubilee Casino and the casino's main landlord, the Cure family, to discuss a new tax protest.

Murtagh said the casino and the Cures have filed objection to their assessment for 1996, although the basis of the objection is not clear.

Jubilee leases some land from the Cures, and owns some property outright.

Meanwhile, Murtagh is preparing to put Jubilee's real property on the auction block Aug. 28, based on the casino's failure to pay some $400,000 in Bed and breakfast proposal in eye of storm

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Nicholas and Audrey Tournillon braced their mansion-in-the-making for the hurricane that didn't come to town last Thursday. Tonight, they're prepared for another type of storm.

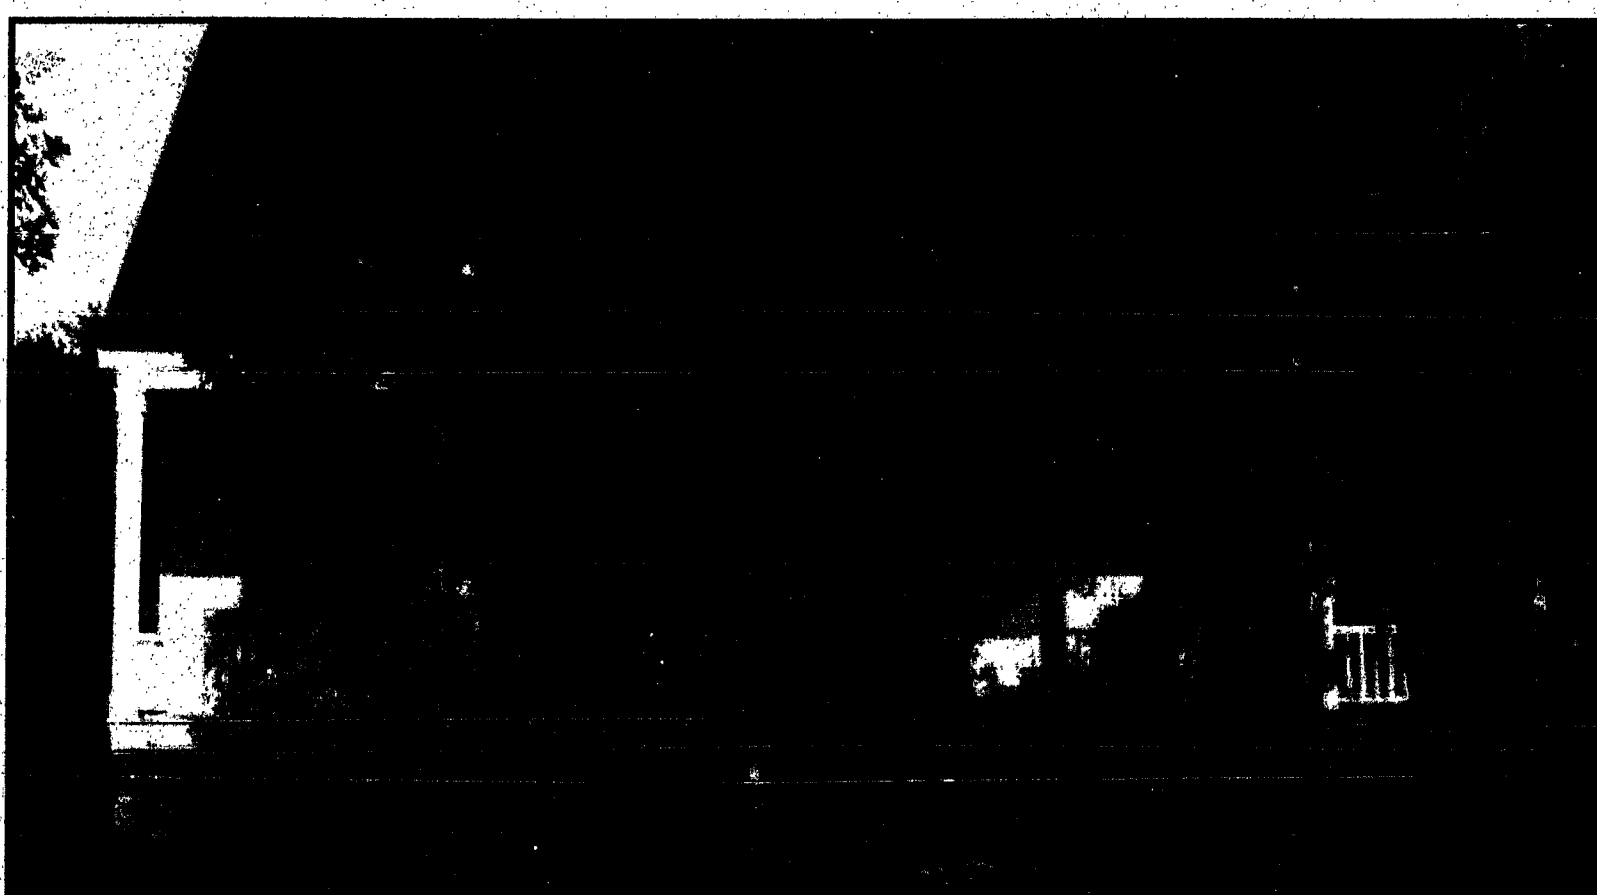

Camp Onward, that is, and the fury that is expected to swirl around the Tournillon's plans to use it for a bed and breakfast establishment.

The request is on the agenda for tonight's Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission meeting and it probably will draw a familiar group of opponents to noise, commercialization of residential areas, traffic and "transient" visitors.

Tournillon, however, said Wednesday none of those concerns need be attached to Camp Onward's main house, at 972 South Beach Boulevard, which he and his wife recently purchased.

With four guest rooms, he said, the maximum number of people at the house won't exceed -- or even meet -- the influx of visitors many resi-

Competition

Competition for the new bed and breakfast site is fierce. The Tournillon family has received several offers for the property, but they are holding out for a higher bid. The property is located on a prime spot in Bay St. Louis, and the Tournillon family is looking for a buyer who can appreciate its potential.

Planning

The Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission will meet tonight to determine the future of the proposed bed and breakfast site. The commission will hear from the Tournillon family and from opponents of the project. The commission's decision will be final.

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of
LILLIAN ROBERTS
August 11, 1985

Dear Mother, you are not forgotten, tough on earth you are no more. Still in memory you are with us, as you always were before.

In our hearts is a picture more precious than silver or gold. It's a picture of you, dear Mother, whose memory will never grow old.

Mother's tired eyes are now asleep. Her busy hands are still. Her aching heart no more shall weep; it was the Master's will.

To those who have their mother, treat her with tender care, for you'll never know her value till you see her vacant chair.

County powerless to stop inadequate, unhealthy waste disposal systems

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Hancock County officials said Monday they're powerless to stop property owners from installing inadequate, substandard and unhealthy waste disposal systems.

The resulting pollution problem is a substantial one, officials said, and there's no relief in sight until the Legislature meets again in January.

The Board of Supervisors, acting on advice from its attorney, Monday rescinded a stop-gap measure they had passed in June dealing with the problem.

That measure had provided, in effect, for extension of a state law that requires state Health Department approval of on-site waste disposal systems before the county issues building permits.

County officials had passed the measure because a state law to that required Health Department approval of such systems expired July 31.

But the board's attorney, Gerald Gex, Monday urged the board to back off from its own action. Gex said he had been "remiss" in failing to tell the board that their June resolution was legally unenforceable.

"I take full responsibility for the passing of this resolution, and while I was of the opinion it cannot be enforced, reasoned that an unenforceable resolution would be better than no resolution."

Gex said he concluded that the board should rescind the resolution when the county was inundated with requests for copies of it -- including a number of such calls from real estate agents.

If the board decided to stick with their June regulation, said Gex, the county surely would be sued and would lose. He cited a June 2 state attorney general's opinion on the same issue, in response to a question from the Jackson County Board of Supervisors. That opinion said that local officials have no jurisdiction over the subject, because the Legislature has effectively "preempted" any county authority. The Legislature gave the state Board of Health the duty to conduct inspections of individual on-site waste water systems -- when requested to do so.

But Jim Weston, district supervisor for the state Department of Health, told the board his staff is virtually powerless despite that state law.

All that state Health Department officials are authorized to do, he said, is recommend what type of on-site waste disposal system should be installed in any particular soil condition. With that paper in hand, a property owner can then get a building permit from the county level.

Weston said the Health Department has no inspection authority to ensure that their recommendations have been carried out. Unless a property owner requests inspection, he said, there is nothing further the Health Department can do.

Gex said he has instructed county Building Inspector Willie Gavin to require property owners to sign a statement saying it's understood that an on-site system may leave the property owner ineligible for financing through a federally-insured lending institution.

The issue arose when Wastewater District 1 Commissioner W.A. Minear said because of a lack of law otherwise, county permits are being issued for septic tanks in areas that previously were rejected for such systems.

And, he said, as the district continues to install public sewer lines in the unincorporated area, residents who've been allowed to install septic tanks are going to be irate that they have to tie into the new public system -- at a cost of some $2,500 each.

State Rep. J.P. Compretta and Sen. Bill Johnson were on hand for the discussion, emphasizing the scope of the problem and asking the board to take action.

Weston said Harrison County, which has adopted the Southern Standard Building Code, is able to control septic tank installation through that code. Jackson County has a zoning code that gives them authority to regulate waste systems.

Hancock County, however, has neither, and Gex pinned some blame on the County Planning Commission.

Gex said the commission was asked years ago to draft a zoning code proposal for Hancock County. The draft document was delivered to supervisors this spring, but has not been publicly discussed or reviewed by the board.

Gex and supervisors Michael Ladner and Robert Peterson said, however, that draft zoning code is a long, long way from adoption.

For one thing, said Gex, the incumbent board is unlikely to have time to act before its term expires. Ladner and Peterson said said many changes should be made, and public hearings held, before putting the proposed code on the ballot for public approval or rejection. Gex noted

Resident asks for rezoning 'blessing'; may become casino site

BY MARY G. SEILEY
A South Beach Boulevard property owner hinted Tuesday a casino proposal may be in the works for an area that was rejected as a casino site last year by state officials.

Jim Maness stopped short of saying exactly what type of commercial venture is in the wings for property between Sand Bayou and Bayou Caddy. But he asked the Board of Supervisors to bless a request to the Commission on Marine Resources to zone the area for "water dependant industries."

Maness had optioned his property in the area to officials of Galaxy Casino last year, but the state commission rejected the casino site proposal on the grounds that the area is predominately used for recreational purposes.

In an extensive presentation Monday to the Board of Supervisors, Maness said the state had recently designated the area as a "P-Zone," or preservation district, after officials found seagrasses in the area. That discovery aborted county plans to construct a beachfront south of Dane Street last year.

"It's a shame it has affected our county to such an extent," Maness said of the seagrass, Ruppia, also known as Widgeon Grass or Ditch Weed.

But Maness said there's a good chance that the commission will be willing to change the zone that area now carries, and allow waterfront industrial activity, including seafood processing or, perhaps, a casino. "There are some people in the wings who are looking for commercial development," said Maness, but he declined to elaborate publicly.

Maness said the County Planning Commission had gone on record in May 1994 declaring its intent to recommend commercial waterfront zoning for the area between the Paddle Wheel Motel, Clermont Harbor and Bayou Caddy, in the commission's proposal for a comprehensive zoning plan.

He offered a copy of a certified statement to that effect.

But supervisors noted that the county commission's draft zoning plan designates the area for residential, not commercial development. They advised Maness to clarify the matter with the Planning Commission.

Stennis Space Center to host Global Change Forum

NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center (SSC) is one of seven NASA centers hosting the U.S. Department of Agriculture Global Change Education Forum Aug. 9-11.

The forum is a follow-up meeting of the U.S. Global Change Education Conference, which was held in May 1994 in Washington, D.C. Each state in the union is represented by a team of five members, which include educators, scientists and administrators. Stennis is hosting team members from Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Illinois and Indiana.

The teams originally met to develop their own environmental strategic plan for global change. The purpose of the regional forum is to provide opportunities for state teams to further develop state and regional networks and incorporate global environmental change issues in educational programs as part of an action planning process.

Many of the states are somewhat isolated in their efforts to focus on global environmental change, and national leadership is not currently evident.

Through the use of satellite technology, the seven centers will be linked together during the three-day forum for interactive demonstrations and sharing ideas. The teams hope to develop a draft strategic plan for their states and collaborative interstate network during this forum.

NASA Administrator Daniel

Goldin pledged support for the state teams. NASA is providing that assistance through the Mission to Planet Earth education fund, which is helping train the next generation of scientists and engineers to understand and study Earth as an integrated system.

For more information about the Global Change Education Forum, please contact Dr. David Power, education programs manager for SSC, at (601) 423-7452. For information on NASA's Mission to Planet Earth Program, call Ramona Travis at (601) 688-1910.

Shelter to receive help

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Hancock County officials offered assurances Monday that county funds will be appropriated to help for Hope Haven's shelter for abused or neglected children.

Mary Woodson asked for $15,000 to help the shelter get off the ground, and the board stopped just short of pledging the sum. The board is preparing its new budget, however, and supervisors indicated they'll set the money aside for Hope Haven.

Hope Haven is a non-profit organization of local citizens who have raised money to buy a shelter facility. There is no such facility in Hancock County, and area youths who are removed from their homes are sent to other facilities in-state and out-of-state.

Woodson said officials from a shelter in Forrest County were justified in asking Hancock County for a donation, since many Hancock County youths are housed temporarily in Forrest County.

But, she said, it makes a lot more sense to spend that money in Hancock County, keeping the youths in their home county during a time of trouble. "We are now a short ways up a long road," said Woodson of the local project, saying Hope Haven has taken a major step in buying a home to convert into a shelter.

Park ranger suspended

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Alton Lumpkin was put on unpaid leave of absence Tuesday from duties as manager of McLeod Park.

The Board of Supervisors made the move in executive session, based on the recommendation of the county park commission. Lumpkin's wife, Sue, was hired in his place, on a temporary fulltime basis. Officials said Mrs. Lumpkin's salary was set at $290 weekly.

Lumpkin was arrested recently on molestation charges stemming from an alleged incident in 1985. His case is pending.

Fordice, Molpus debate at Neshoba County Fair

Never in 47 years of going to the Neshoba County Fair have I seen such a show as the GREAT DEBATE between Gov. Kirk Fordice and Secretary of State Dick Molpus last week. They should have charged admission. Even good ole Ross Barnett didn't draw a crowd like the one that jam-packed the pavilion at the quaint old Mississippi political stumping grounds.

Hand it to Fordice for calculating the political theater such a debate with his chief challenger at Neshoba would have. Political theater, that is was. But Fordice's likening of it beforehand as a sort of Lincoln-Douglas debate is a hoot.

If he was comparing himself to Lincoln, the patron saint of the Republican Party, a Lincoln he ain't. A brawler, a streetfighter, on the debate platform is more like it. Getting Fordice to play by the Marquis of Queensberry rules just wasn't possible.

I thought way back that Molpus was going to be too gentle to get into a roughhouse with the blunt-spoken, hip-shooting Fordice, and the Neshoba debate seemed to be pretty much the case, at least from the reaction of many in the fair pavilion audience. Fordice brought a heavy contingent of his backers to counter the supposed local boy (Molpus is from Philadelphia) and they were quite loud and responsive.

But to the average viewer of the TV sound bites of the debate, as well as the reader of newspaper stories, both of which focused more on the substantive responsiveness to questions each candidate gave, Molpus, perhaps, got the higher marks, since they didn't reflect all the barbs and innuendo thrown in by Fordice while Molpus was talking.

While Molpus would probably be judged the winner by a debating coach, that's not what always impresses the crowd.

Fordice has to be regarded as something of a political phenomenon in Mississippi. He came from nowhere to be elected over an overconfident Ray Mabus four years ago. As I brought out back in 1991, Fordice had the sort of chisled, rugged facial features and a swagger that could catch on with many voters in this state. Many decide how they are going to vote on the basis of how the candidate's face strikes them on TV. A handsome face may be worth a lot in politics in some places, but not in Mississippi.

Although he is not one of them himself, Fordice has been able to establish what I call "rapport with the redneck," an indefinable linkage to the rural political roots of the state which have often been the key ingredient in deciding the outcome of gubernatorial choices. William Winter never had that linkage, hence his difficult climb to the governor's chair. Mabus didn't either and that was one reason he lost in 1991.

Out of the polling surveys that have been conducted by Mason-Dixon the past two months, perhaps the most disconcerting figure to the Dick Molpus camp has been the percentage of the white vote Molpus could count on at this stage. In June the poll gave him only 19 percent, and 17 percent in July.

Of course Fordice has been saying a number of things that appeal to latent prejudices within a lot of whites in Mississippi, such as "workfare," anti-affirmative action, and local control of the schools. Fordice, by innuendo, wove some of these into the debate as little wedge issues that we undoubtedly will hear a lot about from him later on.

Understandably there is grave concern among many in Mississippi, public school advocates, for instance, that a dismantling of some of the most progressive and effective programs this state has been able to institute over the years could be in the offing, should some of Fordice's rhetoric become reality.

Cochran announces funds for state

The Senate Appropriations Committee has approved fiscal year 2000 funding for highway and transportation projects, according to Senator Thad Cochran.

"This bill includes $166.7 million in federal highway trust funds for Mississippi," Cochran said.

The legislation also directs the U.S. Department of Transportation to review the Jackson State University Parkway Project to determine eligibility for federal funding support.

The project, which has received state funding from the Mississippi Legislature, will connect the University with Jackson's central business district and with the area's transportation network.

The bill also directs the Federal Aviation Administration to issue a letter of intent to allocate $400,000 for improvements at the Golden Triangle Regional Airport.

Mississippi will receive approximately $6.9 million for transit system capital improvements and operating expenses. These funds will support urban and rural transit and transportation for the elderly and handicapped.

"A modern transportation system is essential to a growing economy," said Cochran. "Mississippi's economy is on the move, and these funds will help support that growth."

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Strengthening our national defense

While I have been a consistent advocate for a strong national defense, I agree that America could spend less if we spent better. But in the last several years, we have seen an erosion of our military capability and reductions in the numbers of our troops, planes, ships and equipment.

Against this backdrop, the Senate has been debating the authorizing legislation for the Department of Defense for the coming year. We have a very strong bill coming out of the Senate Armed Services Committee on which I serve which will begin to turn around the 10-year decline in how we spend our funds for the defense of our country and the amount that we spend.

There has been a dramatic drop in the amount of funds that have gone into the defense budget, with some justification. After all, the Berlin Wall did come down.

The Soviet Union no longer exists. But, at the same time, our world today is no utopia. As we have seen in just the past year with the situation in the former Yugoslavia, with the aggressive behavior of North Korea, with the attitude of China, it is still very dangerous.

We should not repeat history in the same way we have done twice before in this century and drop our guard. We can spend less but we need to ensure that we have adequate manpower and resources to do the job when our national security is threatened. We need to have a lighter and a more mobile military.

As we move toward a more mobile military, Mississippi will play an important role. Included in the $264 billion defense bill are funds for the LHD-7 amphibious assault ship to be built at Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula and for four, instead of the originally-planned two, DDG-51 Aegis guided missile destroyers.

The LHD is very important in projecting force wherever we might need it around the world. Those big ships carry jets, helicopters, landing craft, and most important, about 1,300 U.S. Marines.

Many may remember that when Air Force pilot Captain Scott O'Grady was shot down over Bosnia, his rescuers were the Marines who came off the USS Kearsarge, an LHD also built at Pascagoula.

The defense bill includes more than $400 million for 10 new C-130 aircraft, five of which will go to the 53rd Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, based at Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi. The fuselages for all 10 planes will be built at Lockheed in Meridian.

In addition to the C-130s, the bill provides almost $20 million to continue the operations for the hurricane hunters at Keesler. Hurricane Erin's route through the Gulf of Mexico reminded us of just how important the hurricane hunters are, not only to Mississippi but to the coastal U.S.

I cannot think of a more welcome sight for the Mississippi Gulf Coast and all the states along the Gulf of Mexico and Florida's eastern coast than these modernized hurricane hunters.

Needed renovations and enhancement of the missions at Columbus Air Force Base, Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, the Air National Guard in Gulfport, and the Meridian Naval Air Station are a part of this bill.

In addition to Mississippi's direct role in our national security, our contractors like Hughes Aircraft in Forest and Trinity Marine in Gulfport will be asked to build sophisticated radar systems and special operations patrol craft for our national defense.

This is a good bill for America and for Mississippi, and it signals a critical and responsible shift in priorities for protecting our national interests.

Senator Lott welcomes any questions and/or comments about this column. Please write to: Senator Trent Lott, 487 Russell Building, Washington, D.C. 20510 (Attention: Press Office).

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

People of this country are the rule of law

Prior to the Congressional hearings on Waco, it was said repeatedly that if law enforcement officers had just waited a little longer, David Koresh would have given himself up.

If there is one thing we clearly learned from the recent hearings it was that Koresh had no intention of ever voluntarily walking out alive.

After careful review of the documents given to me by the National Rifle Association, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the Treasury Department and the Justice Department, I believe David Koresh's intentions were to kill.

He snuffed out the lives of four law enforcement officers and wounded 20 others. And sadly enough, 80 of his followers, many of them women and children, became victims of his warped ways.

If he had only asked his followers to walk out and surrender, none of them would have questioned him. They believed it was an honor to give their young daughters, their bank accounts and their souls to him. They blindly followed him because, as former Davidian Clive Doyle testified before the hearings, "David Koresh was a Messiah."

On that tragic Sunday, four young Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms officers were killed. They were Steven David Willis, 32; Conway LeBlau, 30; Todd W. McKeethan, 28; and Robert J. Williams of Brandon, Miss. The Mississippi and Brandon High School graduate was only one day shy of his 27th birthday when he was gunned down.

They were ATF agents who were paid by the people of this land to enforce the laws of this land. That includes laws like kidnapping, laws like sexual abuse of children, laws against owning machine guns unless you have a license, and laws against threatening other people with death or "elimination," as Koresh liked to say.

Having looked back at all those things for the past two years, I have not seen, read or heard anything that justifies the murder of those four ATF agents, or the wounding of 20 more, or in any way remove the guilt of Koresh for shielding himself with 80 Davidians who died at his wish.

The people of this country are the rule of law, and we all live by the same laws. Although I voted against the so-called assault weapons ban and disagree with many bills that become law, it is the law nevertheless. No one is immune to the laws our society makes.

It is against the law for a man to sleep with 10-year-old little girls. It is against the law for a man to threaten to kill his followers if they talk to police. It is against the law to hold a person against their will for three months. It is against the law to gun down law enforcement officers.

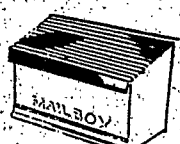

I have read the evidence and I am convinced a Mississippi law enforcement officer and his three buddies died trying to serve a legal warrant, and yet no one was convicted of the crime. It is clear that what Koresh did was not justified and should not be excused.

If we excuse the unlawful behavior of people such as Koresh, a man cunning enough to falsely convince others he was a Messiah so he could get away with murder, I am sad to say we may see more Koresh-type cop-killings.

I hope and pray no one in this country wants us ever to sink to that level of mind-set.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Would Japanese have used the atomic bomb?

To the Editor:

For the past few weeks, especially Sunday, Aug. 6, Zero Hour Hiroshima was plastered on the front pages in most newspapers across the country. It is amazing how so many self-righteous and radical citizens have the audacity to demand that our American government formally apologize to the Japanese government and beg forgiveness for dropping the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

We were blessed to have had as our commander-in-chief President Harry S. Truman. His decision to use this awesome source of destruction saved the lives of countless thousands of American service men and women as well as Japanese civilians.

The war would have gone on and on. The Japanese empire still had large troop concentrations in China, Mongolia, Korea and Japan. There were many kamikaze planes ready for use.

Many, if not most of those who are so critical of the action taken at that time in history, were not even born when World War II was being waged and cannot possibly comprehend the horrors and brutalities inflicted by the Japanese upon POWs and thousands of Chinese and Filipinos, i.e. witness the Rape of Nanking 1937 and the Rape of Manila 1945.

The Japanese had over 300,000 American, British,

Australian, Canadian and Chinese prisoners of war in slave labor camps, and the official order to all camp commanders was to immediately massacre all prisoners if the American forces landed on the Japanese islands. The POWs had already been forced to dig their own mass graves anticipating such a landing.

All those so critical should ask themselves, "If the Japanese government had had those atomic bombs, which American cities would have been targets?"

Rules for a better way

To the Editor:

I come at a time in my personal life in regards to the recent death of my beloved father, ask not what you can do to hurt others, but be there for them in their time of sorrow.

Petty malicious mischief and gossip have always been involved in communities. It's time for concerned special interest groups and citizens to allow for a cleaner environment and stop all political monarchicalism.

There are 82 counties in our state. Let there be a new horizon and a future for all our children everywhere. Families should come together and remember their roots and origin. Please keep in mind our Olympics in '96. U.S.A.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Ray Garcia

VOTING

August 8 the Diamondhead Community Center was a bee hive of activity as lots and lots of folks turned out to exercise their privilege to vote for the candidates of their choice.

It's the American way, and aren't we fortunate for it.

A NEW CHALLENGE

Ann Mixon, a very familiar face at Coast Delta Realty, is wearing a big smile these days and is very proud of her husband George, who has recently been named Civil Defense operations officer for Harrison County.

He will be working under County Civil Defense Director Wade Guice.

George has been in public service for 26 years, being Pass Christian Civil Defense director for 17 years and their fire chief for 19 years.

His philosophy is "to protect lives first, and property second."

PETITION

The Petition to Amend the Constitution as Related to Annexation, a petition under the initiative process is circulating in the state of Mississippi concerning the procedure for annexation.

The POA board believes this is an issue of interest to Diamondhead citizens and is therefore making the petition available at the POA office.

It should be noted that only registered voters are eligible to sign the petition. The deadline is Sept. 1.

HELP,

WE CAN'T FIND YOU

Clearly visible letters, a minimum of three inches high are requested by your service organizations, fire, police, Mobile Medic. They need an address on each mailbox in order to most efficiently do their job, especially in an emergency.

COOKOUT SOCIAL

Come out to the country club Saturday, Aug. 19 to join your friends for lots of fun and good food as you "cook your own."

The club provides the grills, the salad and baked potato bar with all the trimmings. You bring your choice of meat.

Please call 255-2919 or 2525 for reservations to assure that there are enough side dishes for everyone.

Remember, no alcoholic beverages, including beer, can be brought in.

YOUR DCA

The Diamondhead Community Association has supported a myriad of worthwhile projects, the vast majority of which directly involve you, the residents.

A Salute To

WOMEN IN BUSINESS

"One must be a jack-of-all-trades when embarking on a new business venture. It is sometimes very scary, a lot like diving into deep black water, not knowing what is ahead, when one has spent a lot of money," says Jacqueline Wilson, owner of Art FX in Gulfport, MS.

Wilson was a school teacher for 38 years. Her experience spread over many states, including Indiana, Texas, Nevada, as well as Okinawa, Japan. She finished her teaching career here in the Harrison County schools with 17 years tenure.

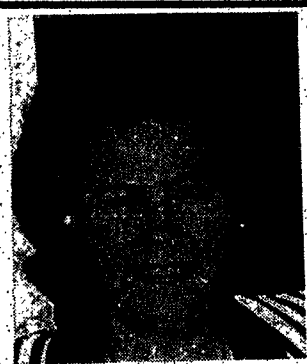

"Averaging grades and writing lesson plans hardly prepares one for 1099's, 941's, etc. I guess that's the part that's most scary, dealing with the government forms and regulations," Wilson said.

"Most of her inspiration comes from her family. They are always encouraging her by saying, 'Oh, you can do it, Mom!' 'Well, if I can do it, anyone can,' Wilson says.

The most important asset she feels she has is her creative problem-solving skills.

"I always had to invent resources and materials. I live by the philosophy that there are many ways to build a better mousetrap," Wilson said.

Sylvia Young, owner of Bon Temps Roule', has been in the costume and formalwear business for 13 years. In 1982, she opened a formalwear and costume shop in New Orleans.

Four years ago, Young opened Bon Temps Roule', located at 111 N. Second Street in Bay St. Louis. Her shop's name translated into English, means "good times roll" and that theme is carried throughout the store.

Young's shop carries costumes for men, women and children, as well as bridal and formalwear, troupes and accessories for all occasions.

Sylvia Young was a successful real estate broker in Louisiana with a GRI certificate for many years.

She is the mother of two children and she and her husband, Ed, enjoy spending time with their two grandchildren. She enjoys working and has little time for anything else.

Young is a board member of the Bay Area Choral and is past vice president of the American Women's Business Association in New Orleans and was an officer of the Christian Women's Association.

Her business goal is to expand the services her business offers and her goal in life is to grow spiritually by helping people in their growth, change and celebrations in their lives.

Recognizing a need for decorator fabrics at affordable prices, Peggy Ryland, with her husband, Skip, opened Classy Coverups Inc. of Gulfport in September 1986, with 150 bolts of fabric.

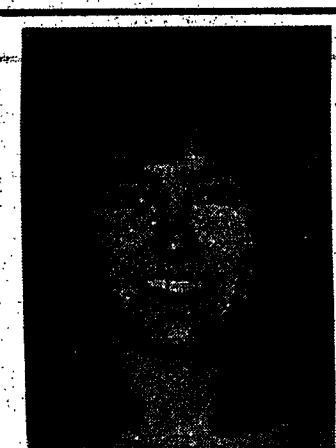

In January 1990, their daughter, Jennifer Ahee joined the Gulfport store and is now the manager. In June, 1990, their son, Mark and his wife, Kim, joined the business when the Hattiesburg store opened. Between the two stores, there are now approximately 3000 bolts of fabric in stock, at prices to fit any budget.

Using over 90 different sources provides access to fabrics from all the large converters, such as Waverly, Schumaker, Robert Allen, Anetex, P. Kaufmann, Richloom, Fabricut, Bloomsbury, John Wolf and Covington, just to name a few.

In addition to fabric, there is a nice selection of trims, fringes, cording, tassels, lapel pins, pillow forms and "how to" books.

The store hours are Monday thru Friday 10-5 and Saturday 10-3:30.

With a family background in the lighting industry, it was an easy entry for Lynn Fortier to choose her present field.

Fortier moved from New Orleans in 1977 to join her family at Carroussel Lighting as an associate. When her parents retired in 1985, Coast Lighting was formed with Fortier as manager. Four years later, a purchase of the company was completed and in 1989, moved to the present location at 1212 E. Pass Rd., Gulfport.

A total of 24 years of experience in purchasing, management and planning, custom lighting for clients provides customers an assurance of quality fixtures, excellent pricing and a lighting layout tailored to their individual requirements.

The showroom also displays home accessories and unusual quality gifts. You are invited to visit Coast Lighting's showroom on East Pass Rd., just one block west of Cowan/Lorraine Rd.

Elaine J. Givens is the owner and operator of Elaine's School of Gymnastics. This summer will mark 29 years in this business.

Givens' reason for opening the school is her love for children. She wanted to show the kids what could be accomplished with a lot of love and hard work.

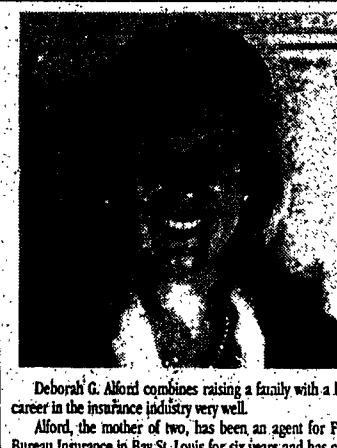

Givens had another dream of one day having a trophy and screenprinting shop and now that dream is a reality. Givens and her husband opened Trophies Etc. over three years ago.

Givens says that she enjoys every day, designing and making special trophies, plaques, gifts and awards for all occasions.

Givens is proud of their low prices on screenprinting and she can design shirts, hats, bags and jackets quickly and efficiently. Trophies Etc. offers 3-5 day service on in-stock items. They offer free engraving on items purchased from them.

Givens is looking forward to the upcoming elections and will provide engraving and printing services at reasonable prices.

Robin Keith was reluctant to leave her position as a math teacher at the Pass Christian Middle School last year when the opportunity to open and own a Logan Farms Honey Glazed Ham® franchise presented itself.

"It's a totally different atmosphere to work in," states Keith, "our customers are so pleasant, it's almost like having friends drop in."

That honey environment is a trademark of the Edgewater Village store in Biloxi which is quickly becoming known for its friendly service and customer appreciation, in addition to blue plate lunches and the widest selection of man-size, hunger bustin' sandwiches on the Coast.

"Spiral cut, honey glazed hams and turkey breasts are our primary products," Keith says, "but we also have a wonderful selection of ribeye roasts, pork tenderloins and chicken breasts which have been marinated with special sauces."

Add to these a selection of smoked fish, pepperoni and smoked bacon, best-serve baby back ribs and smoked turkeys, all cured to exacting Logan Farms specifications.

"When you stop by, check out our selection of soups, casseroles and desserts. At Logan Farms, you can purchase your special meal from beginning to end," claims Keith.

Bobbie Barr, owner of Speedy Rental and CASA coordinator, places serving the community as her #1 priority.

Speedy Rental allows a second chance to households that need it. You can rent, buy or rent to own new furniture and electronics.

Barr's motto is, "All my friends may not be customers, but all customers can be my friends."

As CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocate) coordinator for Hancock County, Barr works with volunteers and the Youth Court to break the cycle of child abuse within the community. CASA volunteers work with the abused, neglected, or abandoned children by acting as the child's voice throughout the court process. Many faces change as a child goes through the court system, but the CASA is the familiar face, the friend the child can count on. For volunteer information, contact Bobbie Barr at 467-7945 or 467-9747.

Barr is the wife and partner of Jimmy Barr. She is the mother of three girls, two boys and the grandmother of one girl.

"I would like to thank my husband and children for all their love and continuous support," says Barr.

Waiting out the vote

A long-standing tradition continued Tuesday night as hundreds of people, including candidates, gathered outside of the Hancock County Courthouse to listen to the results, precinct by precinct, over a loudspeaker. (Echo staff photo by Richard Meek) challenger Jerry Ladner and will face Democrat Scottie Cuevas Nov. 7.

When the final vote was tallied, and it was late because a misce forced the Republican absentee votes to be counted by hand, the spotlight shone on the upsets, Ladner had expressed concern throughout the campaign based on the intensity of Moran's campaign.

Still, as late as Friday, he said he was prepared to win or lose gracefully and to accept the public's decision at the polls.

Ladner was at the county helm during several major controversies. Last year, for instance, county officials saw a hot controversy develop when Stennis Airport officials elected to hire full-time firefighters and require them to perform maintenance and landscaping duties as well.

That move affected a dozen part-timers, who walked off the job and, later, were vocal in criticizing county officials. The Board of Supervisors ultimately backed the decision of the Port and Harbor Commission on the issue, however.

Another storm of controversy arose when the county implemented a garbage collection service in the unincorporated area. While that step was mandated by state officials, the local board was criticized by some area residents who objected to paying for the service.

Those two controversies may have sealed Ladner's fate in the county. Ladner held the vote in the city, but received little support elsewhere.

In Fenton, Ladner lost by a four-to-one margin, garnering only 35 votes, as compared to Moran's 141. The story was similar in the area of Hancock North Central Elementary, where Ladner received only 30 votes, well behind Moran's 114.

Peterson captured 3,940 votes, Garber 3,095.

"I want to congratulate (Garber) on a clean race," Peterson said. "It is one of the most pleasant races I've been involved in."

"He based his campaign on what he thought should be done, and I ran mine on what I thought should be done. I'm relieved, but I'm the Democratic nominee, I still have another campaign."

Peterson, who has not been involved in a runoff since 1979, will face Republican challenger Ray Murphy for a third time.

Peterson has easily defeated Murphy in two previous campaigns, including four years ago when the sheriff captured 65 percent of the vote.

"We're going to tie up again," Peterson said. "We are familiar with each other."

"I will run on my record," Johnson, currently the Bay St. Louis City Clerk, said while she offers herself as the Republican candidate, the office of Chancery Clerk is an administrative, rather than policy-making position.

Johnson nearly doubled Schaefer's total, capturing 1,362 votes as compared to 723 for her opponent.

"It thrills me that I won by such a margin, showing that there was a consensus," Johnson said. "I want to do for the county what I have done for Bay St. Louis," she said.

dences have on holidays or weekends.

Noise? Hardly any is expected, he said, with "upscale" guests who will be able to afford a night or two stay.

Transients? These are the kinds of transients Bay St. Louis needs, Tournillon says: well-heeled, appreciative of historic properties, spending money in the local shops and restaurants, and, possibly, finding their own local property to restore.

It's commercial activity at its smallest and best scale, according to Tournillon, who notes that federal tax credits are available for restoration of historic properties which are put to some commercial use. The couple wants to generate some revenue from the home to keep it in repair, he said. And the dwelling is too large for two people, he added.

There will be no weddings or receptions at the establishment, no parties, he said.

The Tournillons live in Connecticut but have deep roots in this area. Both grew up in New Orleans and, as youths, they spent days at Camp Onward and St. Margaret's Day Camp. Mrs. Tournillon's maternal grandfather, Charles Thierry, settled in Bay St. Louis in the early to mid-1800s, living on St. Charles St.

Tournillon left this area to pursue a career in international finance, but the couple spends months at a time in a condominium they own in Pass Christian. They yearned to move back permanently, and settled on the idea of restoring old Camp Onward as their residence and a bed and breakfast.

What they found inside was more of a restoration than they had envisioned: the ravages of age and neglect had taken a substantial toll on the stability of the home. The porches were falling off, the roof had caved in, there were some termites, and much of the mortar had decayed.

One local appraiser, in fact, said in 1990 that if it weren't for its historic and nostalgic value, the dwelling should be demolished due to its decay.

Camp Onward was operated as a children's camp for some 60 years, but was, in Tournillon's words, a "decaying eyesore" for 15 more years.

The two-story main house now under restoration is being rebuilt to its former state, as closely as possible. Downstairs, the home will include a living room and dining room on the beach-side, rebuilt fireplaces, and a kitchen and library in the rear.

Upstairs, workers are putting in four bedrooms around a central gathering room, with a master bedroom suite, guest bath and shower facilities, and a laundry room.

In all, the Tournillons own the main house and its pool and a total of 1.5 acres. Expansion is impossible, said Tournillon.

"What bothers me is everyone starts from the premise that a bed and breakfast is bad. A bed and breakfast is not bad," said Tournillon. Instead, such facilities typically lead to other property improvements in historic residential neighborhoods.

"Our town fathers probably recognize there are some really lovely old homes in this town that have gotten into very bad state of disrepair."

It takes, he said, a great deal of money to restore and maintain them and most owners need to generate some income to accomplish that.

Still, the Tournillons say they were stunned at the initial reception they got from some Bay St. Louis residents who are staunchly opposed to the project. Tournillon said he offered to fly down from Greenwich and explain his plans to some concerned citizens, but was told he need not bother. Others have been more receptive to the idea, including his immediate next door neighbor.

The Camp Onward proposal is the latest in a series of bed and breakfast plans the commission has dealt with in recent years. So far, the city has approved such facilities on Beach Boulevard, Union Street, and Blue Meadow Road, and rejected another on North Beach Boulevard.

Plans to reestablish Camp Onward several years ago as a retreat facility drew adamant opposition from the area and were rejected by City Council.

Parking

Although the limestone, and some curbing, has been laid for the lot, he said, it's not too late to reduce its size.

Supervisor Wilmer Seymour said there's enough parking now at the site -- spaces at the Washington Street pier are available most of the time without the additional beach lot.

Mitchell said his redesign will cut spaces off the western side of the lot.

Last month, board attorney Gerald Gex mentioned that the county had received a letter of protest from Beach Boulevard property owner Gerald A. Spotorno concerning the parking lot and a proposed comfort station at the site.

Spotorno said part of the project is on a water lot that he and Eva Spotorno have owned for more than 22 years.

While Gex said he didn't think the county faced a legal problem by building on that lot, he urged supervisors to give the Spotorno's letter consideration.

Monday's action shifts the parking lot away from the Spotorno's lot.

Meanwhile, the board took bids under advisement for building a parking lot on Waveland beachfront at Coleman Avenue. Twin L. Construction Co. had the apparent low bid, at $67,140. Other bids were: Blanchard Construction Co., $69,730; GM&R Construction, $89,231. The project had been taxes this year. Murtagh said he also, at that time, will give Jubilee 20 days' notice of the county's intention to seize the casino's personal property -- the bulk of the casino's assets at Bayou Caddy -- including slot machines and furnishings, the barge and the boat itself.

Murtagh notified the Board of Supervisors on Monday that the casino and the Cures had filed a new tax protest.

The supervisors have authorized Murtagh to retain an independent attorney to represent the county in the case, since Board attorney Gerald Gex has removed himself from the matter.

Gex said he took that step since he has represented the Cure family in matters since 1960.

Boomtown Casino

Steer finds home at Boomtown Casino

A steer as big as the Old West, with a heart even bigger, has found a new home at Boomtown Casino in Biloxi.

"Big Warren," a 600-pound Texas Longhorn steer, is now on display at the casino, having come here from Boomtown's sister property in Reno, Nev.

While he lived, Warren was much more than a steer, he was part of his owner's family. He was bottle-raised as a calf and had a temperament as gentle as any family pet. As he followed his master around the ranch, he sometimes seemed more like a dog with big horns than a steer.

According to Boomtown general manager Wayne Yarbrough, the light-brown steer, who was born in 1970 on the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge in Indianola, Okla., died of natural causes at the ripe old age of 23 in Fallon, Nev.

"Big Warren was one of a kind," said Yarbrough. "Back in the 70s, purebred Texas Longhorns were a disappearing breed. That's why Warren was born on a wildlife refuge. When we found out he was in Reno, we thought it would be fun to bring him here for our guests to see and admire. He really is a beautiful animal. Besides, Warren represents a time and place in the United States that is recreated here at Boomtown. He's a symbol of the wild, wild West and we're proud to have his spirit roaming here with us at Boomtown."

"Big Warren"

Big Warren was owned and raised by Taylor Stack, a cattle rancher in northern Nevada, who was right beside Big Warren when he died of old age.

"When Big Warren passed away," said Stack, "I knew I wanted to do something with him that would preserve this fine-looking animal. And I did. I found the taxidermist who had done Trigger, Roy Rogers' horse, and asked him if he would do Warren. Even though he had never done a steer before, he said yes. That's all there was to it.

"All I know is that when Warren was alive, he was big and strong and carried himself with pride. I just couldn't bury him."

Big Warren is now on display in front of the Boomtown-Biloxi Players Club, next to the Gift Shop, where he "roams the big pasture in the sky."

Isle of Capri

Crowne Plaza opens

Isle of Capri Casino officials had their minds set on a different kind full house August 1 as they opened the doors to their new Crowne Plaza Resort in Biloxi. The $45,000,000 facility is the first major hotel franchise to open in the state in more than 20 years as well as the largest hotel franchise ever in Mississippi.

The 15-floor resort will offer 370 oversized rooms and will feature amenities, including three restaurants, hospitality desk, gift shop, pool and hot tub, health club, massage therapist and recreational supervisor, complimentary valet parking, laundry service, in-room voice mail service, 15,000 square feet of convention and meeting space and 100 percent guest satisfaction guarantee. The theming and decor remained consistent with the casino's unique Caribbean-style atmosphere.

Crowne Plaza Resort, which was formerly an up-scale division of Holiday Inn Worldwide, branched into an independent brand in September 1994. The move was made by the parent company, Bass PLC, as a new branding strategy for operations in the Americas, Europe, the Middle East and Africa.

The franchise, however, maintains connections as part of the Holiday Inn Worldwide organization, including participation in the company's Holidex System — a Holiday Inn International reservation service — which will include the Isle's new property.

"Evolving into a resort has been the vision of our parent company, Casino America Inc. since the Isle of Capri Casino concept was created," said Isle general manager Tim Hinkley.

With corporate support, the current economic growth of our community and the highly respected franchise of Crowne Plaza we are now able to offer a new level of accommodations to the Mississippi Gulf Coast," he continued.

The Isle of Capri, the first casino to open in the South, celebrated the grand opening on its third anniversary with a giant VIP party, including bands, open house in all three restaurants, the premier of Island Fever, a Caribbean-style production with live singing and dancing, casino promotions and a $30,000 fireworks show by the Zambelli family.

The doors were officially opened after Prince Rupert, fire eater from Tampa, Fla., performed a twist to the ceremony by burning the ribbon instead of cutting it.

In addition to the 246,330-square-foot hotel and 32,000 square-foot atrium and entertainment complex, the Isle of Capri has made over $3,000,000 in renovations and upgrades to the gaming facility.

The Isle of Capri Casino-Biloxi has been a leader in Mississippi gaming since opening on August 1, 1992. The Isle is owned by Casino America Inc., also operators of Isle of Capri Casinos in Vicksburg and Bogalusa City, La. and is publicly traded on NASDAQ.

Clementine exhibit opens at Stennis

An exhibition of photographic images, taken by the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) spacecraft Clementine on its mapping mission to the moon, will be on display at the John C. Stennis Space Center's Visitors Center through Sept. 17.

The photographs, both in color and black and white, are dramatic. A large suite of three 39"x60" full color images, the focus of the exhibition, shows the sun rising over the rim of the moon, highlighting the earth, Venus and other planets.

A second suite of five images in black and white are matted in black and white to give a harlequin appearance to the wall. Still another shows the blue jewel of earth with the African continent clearly visible, suspended over the cratered, barren surface of the moon.

The exhibition, developed by NRL, consists of 38 images ranging from the first conceptual drawing on a napkin of the mission components to a complete photo mosaic of the moon. The concept for the mission was initiated and supported financially by the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization. Partners in the project besides NRL were Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and many private industrial contributors.

The spacecraft was placed in final lunar mapping orbit on Feb. 21, 1994 at 7:15 a.m. EST. In lunar orbit, Clementine circled the moon every five hours and, over the course of approximately 70 days, mapped the entire surface of the moon using ultraviolet, visible- and infrared-spectrum cameras. The images returned by Clementine were the first high-resolution images of the moon collected since the Apollo lunar landing in 1972. Clementine left lunar orbit in early May 1994 after amassing a collection of 1.8 million lunar images.

Clementine was a "fast-track" program from its inception. NRL's work on Clementine began in March 1992, just 22 months before the January 1994 launch. This is less than half the time usually required to build a spacecraft like Clementine. And, at $75 million (spacecraft and launch vehicle), it was built for about one-fifth the usual cost. Other government agencies and industry have watched this program carefully to learn about performing missions quickly at relatively lower costs.

The free exhibit will be open to the public daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Facts about Clementine

Twenty-five years after the first manned lunar mission, a spacecraft developed by the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) was launched to return to the moon in a cooperative mission with the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization (BMDO) and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The spacecraft, called Clementine 1, demonstrated some of the current "cheaper-faster-lighter" spacecraft technologies during its mission to orbit and map the moon. Clementine was launched on Jan. 25, 1994 from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The Clementine spacecraft was designed by NRL to flight-qualify some of the most advanced light-weight technologies developed for BMDO. The spacecraft was developed at NRL's Naval Center for Space Technology (NCST), who was responsible for integrating, testing and operating the spacecraft.

The Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory integrated the sensor suite used in the spacecraft and other federal agencies have provided assistance and support. The lightweight technologies that Clementine demonstrated and flight qualified included star tracker cameras; two different inertial measurement units; a reaction wheel (used for attitude control); a 15-ampere-hour, 47-watt-hours-per kilogram nickel-hydrogen battery (which has twice the energy per unit of mass than previous batteries); the lightest solar-cell arrays ever flown with twice the power density of previously flown units (gallium-arsenide on germanium); a commercial computer (which uses a 32-bit R3000 reduced instruction set computer chip, with an associated R3081 processor); a solid state data recorder (1.9 gigabits, four times the capacity of any previously flight-qualified solid-state recorder); and a data compression chip. Composite graphite epoxy structural elements were also flown.

Advanced miniature sensors and instruments demonstrated included an ultraviolet/visible spectrum camera; both near-infrared and long-wave-infrared cameras; a laser image detection and ranging high-resolution imaging and ranging system; and a charged-particle telescope. Radiation measurement instruments flown included four dosimeters and a single-event upset/total dose detector.

NRL has placed the Clementine imagery on the Internet, making it easily accessible and freely available to space science researchers and school children alike.

Clementine represents a new class of small and capable spacecraft that enables long-duration, deep-space missions at low cost and provides significant advances in lightweight satellite technology. Along with its primary military mission to qualify lightweight technology, it has returned valuable lunar data for the international civilian scientific community. The spacecraft has far exceeded mission science objectives, with its scientific observations being used to build the most comprehensive multispectral geological lunar map to date. It has also effectively demonstrated near-autonomous spacecraft operations, opening a pathway for reduced operational costs for future Department of Defense (DoD) and NASA space missions.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Hot stuff and turkey fish

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Holy Hot Hanna on a Half-Shell, if the weather gets any warmer outside, pretty soon it's gonna get hot. All the fishin' buddies already know what happens when it gets really hot — if only they would tell the Turtle, then he would also know what to do when it gets too hot to plow. Oops, that should be too hot to fish, which would be a real disaster.

Speaking of fishin', I thought that was what this column was all about. Anyway, speaking of fishin', Hurricane Erin was gracious enough to go east with the geese and not cause us any trouble.

The side benefit of her eastward trip was to create some of the best inshore fishin' we have seen in the area in a while.

The high tides brought in some nice clean saltwater that made the fish real excited. When the high tides, which completely covered the marsh, started to roar out of the bayous and canals, it carried a whole big bunch of shrimp and bait fish into reach of the trout, reds and assorted other hungry fish.

The cafeteria-style of a bait fish banquet meant the fish went on a feeding frenzy. In other words, the fishin' has been great ever since Erin went ashore.

The most noticeable change since the hurricane is the concentration of salt in the water. If you get the chance, taste the water and you will see what I mean.

Before I get into any special stuff on fishin', I gotta relate the information I received in a letter from Dr. Emile A. Bertucci of Pass Christian about wild turkey fish.

I had to call them turkey fish or otherwise how could I talk about them in a fishin' column?

Dr. Bertucci relates that two weeks ago he turned loose 28 wild turkeys on his property on the Kiln-DeLisle Road in the Rotten Bayou area.

The turkeys are of the eastern strain and consist of six gobblers, 12 hens and ten jakes. (Jakes are gobblers which are only one year of age). The gobblers all have beards 6-12 inches long and are over two years old.

Dr. Bertucci claims the turkeys are already ranging further and further away from home, even though he has placed feeders to ensure their survival until such time as the fall acorn crop will allow them to make it big-time in the wild.

The good doctor asks folks to be on the lookout for turkeys in the road in the Rotten Bayou area. The turkeys were pen-raised and still don't know that a car will turn them into road-kill sail turkeys before they get a chance to breed and become target for next spring's turkey season.

By the way, a sail turkey is a turkey that has been run over by an automobile so many times you can pick it up and throw it and it will "sail."

Meanwhile back on the fishin' scene, the fishin' piers are producing some really nice catches of white trout and croakers at night. This is a blessing for the folks who cannot stay out in the daytime heat.

It is generally a little cooler at night than it is during the daytime. I am told it has something to do with the sun going down at night. Whatever ya' say!

The best bait to use on the fishin' piers at night is the stuff you buy by the pound — dead shrimp.

To change the subject again, I gotta tell the fishin' buddies that the green men with the flashing blue light are back from vacation and working the seawall and boat launches to check on fishin' licenses and safety equipment.

Remember you needed to get a new fishing license after July 1 as the old license expired on June 30. It is a whole big bunch cheaper to get your new license than to pay the fine for not having a current license.

This week's wonderful wise words: Make sure you drink plenty of non-barley pop fluids if you wanna stay healthy in the current heat.

Does Holy Hot Hanna on a Half-Shell wear a halter top while turkey fishin', Turtle?

Try topwater lures for muddy water

When anglers have to fish in muddy water, most choose either a spinnerbait or jig, but occasionally, says professional bass tournament angler Guy Eaker, topwater lures bring surprising results.

"Muddy water usually means rising water, and when the water rises, bass rise with it," says the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler, "which makes a surface lure like a buzzbait or popper a good lure choice. I have caught some huge stringers on a buzz bait in muddy water."

Eaker, a former guide on South Carolina's Santee-Cooper lakes, remembers one particular week on those lakes when he broke not only lines but also rods battling monster bass; he was fishing muddy water and the bass were striking buzz baits so hard they felt like alligators.

"In muddy water, lures that have a lot of vibration generally produce the best," he explains. "Normally, anglers use spinnerbaits, because they're fishing pretty thick cover and those lures are relatively weedless."

Bassin' with the pros

"Buzz baits are not quite as weedless, but they do create a lot of commotion. Bass don't have any trouble finding them, and these lures are effective because the fish are usually pretty shallow when the water is muddy."

Eaker also suggests anglers consider using a popper or chugger topwater lure in dingy and muddy water conditions.

"One of my favorite places to use a lure like this is on points or shorelines that have become muddy because of boat traffic," says the Evinrude pro. "I'll make a cast into the muddy water and work the lure out to where the water changes color and becomes a little more clear."

"I think bass sometimes hide right along that dividing line to ambush baitfish that may be moving out of the muddy water."

Eaker explains that it's important to work poppers and chuggers with a lot of action so bass can locate them, since the fish can't locate the lures by sight.

"If there is visible cover, such as bushes or stumps, you'll normally do better by working your lures close to them, too, just as you would if the water were clear," he adds.

Even in extremely high, flooding muddy water, bass will hit topwater lures, the North Carolina pro continues. One of the best places to look for fish under these conditions is around vegetation, especially large grassbeds.

"I believe the vegetation helps filter some of the silt out of the water so the bass can breathe a little easier," he says. "A spinnerbait may catch these bass, but a topwater lure will, too."

"The advantage you have with a surface lure like a buzz bait is that very few fishermen will be using one, so the bass probably won't be conditioned to seeing it."

Youths attend camp

Seventeen Gulf Coast youths participated in the 1995 Hill Denson Baseball Camp at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The regular session, July 30-Aug. 3, was designed to improve each player's skills and understanding of all facets of the game.

The pitcher/catcher session, July 23-25, was designed to provide detailed instruction in the areas of pitching and catching. Campers could receive instruction in both areas or concentrate on a specific skill.

USM baseball coach Hill Denson, his staff and players instructed the participants, who were divided into groups according to grades, with no more than 10 players per instructor.

Bay St. Louis participants were Paul P. Keith, 7, a student at North Bay Elementary; son of Larry and Beth Paul Keith; and Jarrod and Gene Bourgeois.

Travis W. Johnson of Waveland also participated.

By Melvin Breland
Saturday night's racing program at Sun Coast Speedway was rescheduled from July 1 due to a rainout. The threat of rain still prevailed, but the program was able to be concluded with a familiar group of winners taking the checkered flag. The Winged Mini Sprints were also on hand, as well as kids bicycle races.

Mike Ladner qualified on the pole with Billy Joe Schonewitz on the outside for the start. K. I. Davis, the man with the most feature wins this season, was on the second row behind Ladner. As they came out of turn four for the green, Schonewitz took the lead with Ladner and Davis dropping in behind.

The hardest fought race was for fourth between Mitchell Williams and Marty Broadus as they battled for 30 laps in the same position.

Schonewitz held a comfortable lead for most of the race only to have an anxious moment when he and Ladner came upon a lap car with only a few laps remaining. Schonewitz went high while Ladner chose the low side. Schonewitz came dangerously close to the top of the track before he managed to get back into the groove and remain in the lead. Although Davis held on to the third spot he was never able to mount a challenge to move past Ladner.

The 30-lap Late Model Sportsman feature did not see a lead change for the entire race among the top five as Schonewitz took his Arts Automotive-powered and sponsored car to the championship.

Donald Parker held the pole spot in the Pro Stock division with Jamie Luzenberg on the outside for the start. With only a lap into the race, a caution flew bringing about a single file restart, which saw Bubba McQueen get a little out of shape in turn four. This set off a chain reaction with Timmy Moody suffering a rollover, which sent him, Luzenberg and McQueen to the pits. Luzenberg was able to make repairs under the red and did not lose his position.

Moody managed to return, but had to fall in on the rear. McQueen was through for the night. Parker lead early but suffered heating problems, allowing Gary Joiner to take over the lead. Joiner fell victim to a flat, ending his chances. Luzenberg picked up the lead, followed by Wallace Allen with Parker making a pit stop under yellow causing him to fall in on the rear. As the checkers flew it was Luzenberg, Allen, Parker, and Moddy in a caution-filled race.

Marius Jacob was the pole sitter in the four-cylinder modified race with Jerry Farve by his side. Jacob moved to the front on the start and had an easy time for the win. Farve fell back to fifth before working his way back up to third behind second place finisher Jimmy Necaise. Jamie Farve brought out an early caution but managed to work his way back in to fifth in the 13-car field. Kalif Seller finished fourth ahead of Fountain Orson Jr. to round out the top five.

Lonnie Scarbrough and Owen Kosbab headed the 16-car field of Street Stocks in the A maine. Kosbab managed to take the lead but it was short-lived as Scarbrough managed to take over in the early going.

Scarbrough caught a lucky break when a red came out as he was having a flat, which allowed him to pit for repairs without losing his position.

Second place finisher Chuckie Smith managed to apply the heat to Scarbrough as the checkers came out. Third place finisher Johnny Willis steadily worked his way from back in the pack.

Randy Sexton and Leroy Thompson were both disqualified as they failed to pass tech inspection. This moved Rodney Barber and Willie Marin into fourth and fifth spots.

The B maine went to Joe McKay, followed by Robert Knight and Mark Pritchard.

David Scott finished in the top spot in the Rookie Division over Devin Wright and B. J. Barnes in the 13-car field, but Wright and Barnes failed to pass tech. This moved A. J. Krohn and Steve Pate into the top tree.

Thirteen Mini Sprints made the feature race with Chris Porter leading a flag-to-flag outing over Ed Wasdin. Heat wins went to Porter and Kevin Cook.

MDWFP seeks public input

Officials at the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks (MDWFP) are asking for public input on the dates for the 1995-96 duck hunting season.

The unprecedented move will allow hunters to voice their opinions on the upcoming duck season. The most popular choice will be presented to the Commission on DWFP at their August 23 meeting in Morton.

"Our job is to serve the needs of the public, and what better way to do that than to let them communicate directly with the Commission," said Dr. Sam Polles, MDWFP executive director. "It's an innovative way to let hunters have input to the Commission on the decision-making process that affects them most."

The options (based on a 50-day season, five-bird daily limit) are:

- 1) Nov. 23 - Dec. 2
Dec. 13 - Jan. 21
- 2) Dec. 2 - Jan. 21 (no split)
- 3) Nov. 18 - Nov. 27
Dec. 13 - Jan. 21
- 4) Nov. 22 - Nov. 27
Dec. 9 - Jan. 21
- 5) Other

Federal law prohibits the season from going beyond Jan.

21. To participate, circle your choice or fill out a new season before Aug. 20 and mail to: Public Information, MDWFP, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

PRCC signs two

Pearl River Community College basketball coach Richard Mathis signed two six-foot eight inch centers to play for the reigning state champion Wildcats.

While playing for Picayune High School, Keith Myers scored 17 points per game and pulled down 15 rebounds. He was an 8-5A All-District player.

Chad Jones, a 250-pound player for Morgan City High School in Morgan City, La., averaged 15 points per game and 12 rebounds. He was an all-region performer.

This past February, Mathis led the Wildcats to the school's first state championship in 30 years.

Blaize lifting for world title

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Mike Blaize, of Pearlington, has been selected by the American Drug-Free Powerlifting Association to compete in the World Masters Championships.

The meet will take place in Horsham, West Sussex, England on August 19. Blaize will leave on August 15 and remain in England with the ADFPA through August 21.

Blaize competes in the 123 pound weight class. He has been lifting for over 20 years.

He trains 4 days a week for about 1 hour and 30 minutes each day.

Powerlifting includes the bench press, squat, and deadlift. The total combined weight determines the winner.

Blaize placed second in the National Masters Championships in November that were held in Lakeland, Florida. He has participated in 62 meets while winning 29 of those meets. He has placed second 16 times and finished third in 10 meets. Blaize has won 10 state championships and has lifted in seven different states.

Blaize undoubtedly commented that this is the biggest meet he has ever competed in.

He will have three lifts in each category. There will be three judges for each category that will judge certain rules of each lift. So the real competition is against yourself. Good luck, Mike!

Ole Miss plans modern food court with appeal

How do you satisfy hungry University of Mississippi students? Offer them easy access to food choices—and lots of them.

This fall students will find the Ole Miss Student Union being transformed into a modern food court with choices of at least 10 different outlets. The plan has met the approval of the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning.

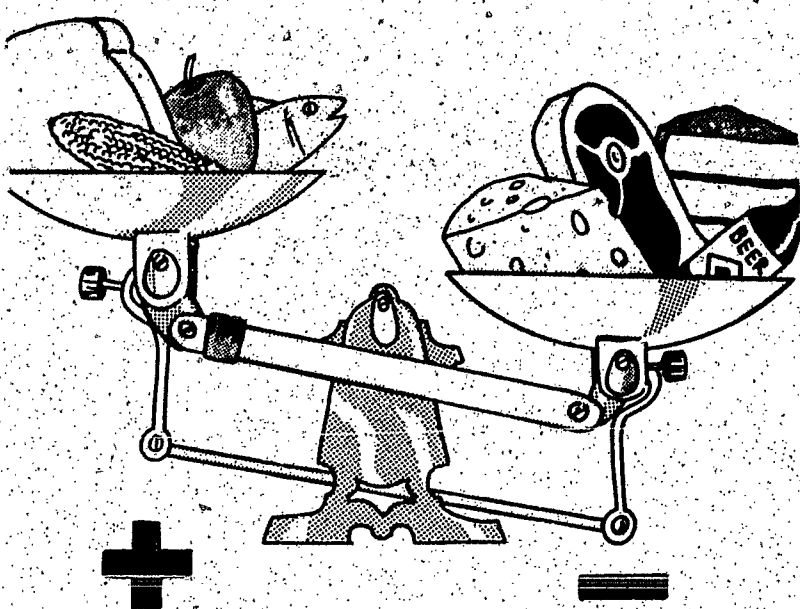

Under study for approximately one year, the concept should impact student recruitment and retention by improving campus life, says Vice Chancellor for Administrative Affairs Doyle Russell.

"The traditional cafeteria no longer meets the needs of our students. They want choices, especially when they don't have transportation to travel off campus."

Aramark Educational Services of Philadelphia, Penn., will provide an umbrella-type contract, which will feature popular national brands, as well as the company's own signature brands. Aramark will officially assume management of dining services Effective Aug. 7.

Actual renovation work will begin next week, and every effort will be made to minimize interference with regular campus activity.

Chosen after four companies and the university's own in-house food service made proposals to a university committee, Aramark has made a commitment to invest $1 million in the facility—an infusion of capital

Russell said Ole Miss could not have managed on its own.

In addition, the company's track record impressed committee members, said university attorney Mary Ann Connell. Aramark has the exclusive vending rights to the 1996 Olympic Games, as well as numerous long-standing contracts with universities across the country.

While the first phase of the proposed Aramark contract targets the Student Union, over the next year Aramark also will establish additional food outlets in selected dormitories, manage the Alumni House snack bar and open an all-you-can-eat board plan cafeteria in Johnson Commons. The university will receive a variable-rate commission for different types of sales.

All incoming freshmen will pay a mandatory $400 per semester fee starting this fall for an Ole Miss Freshman Food Plan Card, which can be used on a declining-balance system with any campus food service or vending machine.

The fee is up $200 from the Ole Miss Express Card that students formerly used to buy food, books, and tickets for entertainment and sporting events. Students can establish another fund to cover book and ticket purchases.

"Many universities require freshmen to deposit anywhere from $500 to $700 on meal cards, so our mandatory fee is low," said Vice Chancellor Russell. "Parents and students have expressed interest for a more specific meal plan so they would know what to expect financially."

While some questions have been raised about the food court competing with local restaurants and about the increased student food fee, Connell said that after much study, the committee found the concept was one some universities in the nation had been embracing for some 30 years.

"It's the responsibility of a university to provide adequate food services for all of its students," said the attorney. "It's important that Ole Miss provides a variety of contemporary food."

Referring to conversations she has had with representatives of colleges and universities that offer such services, Connell said, "There have been no discernible drops in purchasing from the local community. Even institutions that experienced opposition at the beginning have not seen fear of competition as a recurring problem."

University administrators visited operations at various college campuses throughout the region, including the University of Memphis, and Emory, Tulane, Loyola, Georgia Tech and Western Kentucky universities. Likewise, companies submitting proposals visited the Ole Miss campus to assess current services, interview students and study traditions.

The resulting five-year contract proposed with Aramark includes rules and stipulations governing service and food quality. "This is a new and exciting thrust for our campus," said the vice chancellor. "Through this company, we can provide outstanding, innovative food-service delivery. This is the right thing at the right time for this school."

Johnson Commons, a cafeteria on campus that currently serves lunch, will be closed in August if the new plan received College Board approval.

Throughout the 1995-96 academic year, plans are to utilize the facility for banquets and other meetings, as well as a backup to the Student Union if renovations for the food court are not complete by the 1995 fall semester, said Russell.

Aramark will re-open Johnson Commons for the 1996 fall semester with an all-you-can-eat board plan, and several meal options will be available to all students. This move will coincide with the NCAA's closing of dormitories and cafeterias operated exclusively for student athletes.

Some current Ole Miss food service employees will be retained by the university to handle vending machines on campus, as well as the concessions at sporting events. As part of the proposed contract, remaining employees will be

USM preparing for students' fall return

Students return to classes at the University of Southern Mississippi Monday, Aug. 21, with many of the more than 3,000 resident students arriving up to five days earlier.

The residence hall move-in from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 17 kicks off a series of welcoming events that organizers in the Division of Student Affairs are calling Southern Pride '95.

"It's an opportunity to create enthusiasm among the student body and at the same time acclimate students to the resources on campus that can make them successful," said Dean of Students Dr. Tom Shoemaker. "We want to give everybody a good feel for what the university's going to be like."

Much of the enthusiasm that USM officials are trying to generate is aimed at getting students to the USM football opener against Northern Illinois at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 21, in M. M. Robert Stadium. USM offices will close and classes will dismiss at 2:15 p.m. that day to encourage tailgating and other pre-game activities.

USM officials moved the game from Sept. 2 in order to boost student participation. Since Sept. 4 is Labor Day, many students go home for a three-day holiday weekend.

Students planning to attend USM this fall must pay fees and clear all past-due balances by Aug. 10. USM officials warned earlier that a new governmental regulation prohibits students from using federal financial aid to cover unpaid balances from the 1994-95 school year or earlier.

Of about 9,500 fee invoices mailed out in mid-July, about 4,000 students had prior balances. Those who can't pay by Aug. 10 will find classes cancelled and will have to go through late registration Aug. 17-25. Oct. 2 is the last to drop classes without academic penalty.

During move-in, food and beverage tents will be set up outside the "freshman quad" of residence halls to accommodate new students, parents and other assisting in the move-in. More than 200 members of student organizations have volunteered to help with the move-in.

The volunteers will come from the African-American Student Organization, Baptist Student Union, Student Alumni Association, Student Government Association and fraternities and sororities.

Other Southern Pride '95 activities include:

— Noon-2 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 17: students and their parents will be able to have lunch in The Commons with faculty, staff and student leaders. (That's the first meal available at campus dining facilities after break.)

— 7 p.m., 9:30 p.m. Thursday: Movie "Crimson Tide," starring Gene Hackman and Denzel Washington, free with student ID, at Reel Theater across from USM's Hardy Street entrance.

— 10:30 a.m. Friday, Aug. 18: Welcoming convocation for students in Bennett Auditorium. Welcoming remarks by USM administrators and student leaders.

— 8:30 a.m., Friday, Aug. 18: Orientation for new faculty, Polymer Science Research Center auditorium.

— 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Friday: Lunch on the Union Plaza.

— 2-4 p.m. Friday: Orientation program, site to be announced. Featuring information on leadership and wellness programs, student government, religious opportunities, time management, financial resources, spirit activities, counseling and more.

— 7-11 p.m. Friday: "All-nighter" at Payne Center, featuring recreational and other activities.

— 11 p.m. Friday: Spirit bonfire, at the southwest exterior corner of the Payne Center, which will be the future site of night-before spirit bonfires for each home football game.

— 10 a.m.-noon Saturday, Aug. 10: Community service project organized by USMs Volunteer Resource Center. Sites, details to be announced.

— 9 p.m.-midnight Saturday: Fall Fest in the Union, featuring a dance in Seymour's, game room activities and other events planned by organizations.

— Sunday, Aug. 10: Evening cookouts outside freshman residence halls.

Looking ahead in the fall semester, students will get a break for Thanksgiving on Nov. 23-24. Fall commencement is scheduled for Dec. 15 and residence halls close for the Christmas break the next day.

Mississippi Outdoors

Three words: fishing, fishing, fishing. That's what Mississippi Outdoors will be doing this week (Aug. 10).

First they'll head south to the Barrier Islands for some red fish and speckled trout action. Host Jim Walker joins outdoors writer Mike Ballard of Biloxi, TV personality Paul Cashio of New Orleans and Wahoo boat representative Skip Gardner of Biloxi for maybe the best salt-water fishing trip ever.

The program airs today at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

given continuous employment with Aramark for 12 months, with evaluations taking place for retention after that time.

"We have worked closely with the Personnel Office to establish policies and rules to protect these employees during the transition," said Russell. "We recognize that we have outstanding food-service employees and are confident they will experience a smooth transition with Aramark. We believe Aramark is a high-quality, professional food-service corporation, which will need experienced employees to complement their assumption of our food-service activities."

The university also is working with the company to ensure that employees with only a short time left before retiring are able to complete their service.

Ole Miss, Oxford gear up for Welcome Week activities

A street dance, concerts, pep rally, fashion show, merchants' fair, picnics and orientation sessions are on the menu Aug. 14-24 to give University of Mississippi students a taste of campus and community life at their home away from home.

"Welcome Week 1995 is designed for everybody — new students, returning students, University departments, student organizations and the Oxford community," said Lloyd Holmes, coordinator of program development for the University Counseling Services.

"New students will benefit the most by meeting other students, becoming familiar in their new environment and getting involved in campus events. We want these students to feel at home as they enter this different phase of their lives."

Highlights of the week's activities include an opening welcome by the new chancellor, Dr. Robert C. Khayat on Aug. 19 at 10 a.m. in the Grove; a concert by the world-renowned Ole Miss Concert Singers on Aug. 20 at 8 p.m. on the Student Union plaza; and a pep rally and Welcome-Back Rebels Party on Aug. 24 at 7 p.m. in the Grove.

Ole Miss and the City of Oxford are working together on "Welcome Week" plans and the scheduled includes:

• Aug. 14 — Residence halls open at 8 a.m. A registration help station in the Student Union lobby provides students with information from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

• Aug. 15 — From 8 a.m.-5 p.m., transfer and international students who did not attend an orientation session during June can be directed, through the Student Union lobby, to campus locations where they can check immunization records, receive speech and hearing screenings, and have their photo ID cards made. A mint tea gathering is set for 5 p.m. behind the Y-Building.

Aug. 16 — An 8 a.m. orientation conference for freshman and international students who did not attend earlier offerings begins in the Student Union lobby. The City of Oxford in coordination with area merchants presents a fall fashion show at 7 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

• Aug. 17 — An Oxford-Lafayette County Chamber of Commerce Merchants' Fair offers new students an introduction to area businesses starting at 9 a.m. in the Student Union. Students can kick up their heels at an 8 p.m. street dance in historic downtown Oxford.

• Aug. 18 — Area businesses continue to show their wares at the Chamber of Commerce Merchants' Fair from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. in the Student Union. Students are invited to make new acquaintances at an 8 p.m. ice cream social in the Martin/Stockard Hall parking lot.

• Aug. 19 — A welcome by Chancellor Khayat, who took office July 1, kicks off a day of festivities in the Grove, and includes programs to promote unity, school spirit and diversity at 10:15 a.m., before teams are formed at noon for the "Outdoor Adventure." The Grove really rocks from 7-11 p.m. with the sounds of bands Blackstone Jetti, Dean Dollar and Prime Time.

Aug. 20 — A variety of religious services include a 5 p.m. outdoor Welcome Mass at St. John's Catholic Church, followed by an ice cream social sponsored by the Catholic Student Association.

An ice cream and volleyball social at the Wesley Foundation begins at 6:30 p.m. An 8 p.m. performance by the Ole Miss Concert Singers — winners of the 1994 Grand Prix-Recontres Internationales de Chant Choral in Tours, France — is a treat for music lovers and takes place on the Student Union plaza.

• Aug. 21 — A new food court in the Student Union starts serving up meals at 7:30 a.m. Students can browse through an organizations fair from 1-5 p.m., also in the Student Union. The Student Programming Board sponsors the Velcro Olympics from 1-5 p.m. on the Student Union plaza, and for those preferring to exercise their taste buds, local restaurateurs present "A Taste of Oxford" in the Grove from 1-5 p.m. Minority students share their perspectives on the university experience at 2:30 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom, and the grills are kept hot at a 6:30 p.m. cookout for freshmen at the Wesley Foundation House.

• Aug. 22 — Student organizations continue to strut their stuff as their information fair is repeated from 1-5 p.m. in the Student Union. A welcome-back workshop is set for 6:30 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation House.

• Aug. 23 — Students can scoop up some dessert and new acquaintances during a 6 p.m. ice cream social at the Peace Lutheran Church.

• Aug. 24 — For those willing to test the heat, a 5-K run sponsored by the Ole Miss intramural department begins at 3:30 p.m. in the Grove. The Wesley Foundation House offers a 6 p.m. worship service, and a welcome-back picnic is hosted at 6 p.m. by the First Presbyterian Church of Oxford. Evening entertainment features a pep rally in the Grove at 7 p.m., followed by a Welcome-Back Rebel Party at 8 p.m. with music by Tyrone Smith and the Revue Band.

For more information about welcome-back activities, call Lloyd Holmes at (601) 232-7125.

THE ABILITY TO STOP CHILD ABUSE IS NOW IN ALL OUR HANDS.

For years, child abuse has been a problem to which there were few real answers. But now there's an innovative new program that can help stop the abuse before it starts. Tips On Writing EFFECTIVE Classified Ads

STICK TO THE FACTS

Prospective buyers need to know details, like the condition of the item for sale, the size, brand name, color and any other relevant information that would help them make a decision.

BE HONEST

Aside from being unethical, exaggerating or misinforming potential buyers won't help you make a sale, and may only serve to lose a prospective buyer's trust. Even if they come to look at what you have to sell, they'll be less likely to buy the item or trust you once they see they've been misled.

SPELL IT OUT

Abbreviations are not easily understood by many people and may even confuse a reader. It only takes them a second to pass over an ad because it doesn't seem clear, why let it be yours because you abbreviated a description?

THE BOTTOM LINE

State the price. You'll save yourself the hassle of having to answer calls from prospects who, upon learning the price, are not really interested. Price is the first thing they'll look for when reading your ad, and when prospects know the price, you'll know you have a serious buyer on the line.

BE THERE

List the best hours to call and make sure you're at home. If you don't list a specific time, you could be flooded with calls any time of the day or night. And when you're not at home to take calls, most likely, they won't call back.

ASK US

If you aren't sure how to word your ad or what features to include, why not ask us? Our professionals on staff know how to create an effective ad that sells, they're always willing to help, and there's no charge!

Litter-Free ... AND PROUD TO BE!

Use respectful names for addressing others

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development Specialist
Cooperative Extension Service

"In comparison to the problems some people have, mine is not so bad, but it bugs me just the same. It makes my skin crawl when an adult I don't know calls me 'sugar, honey or sweetie.'"

"No matter what tone of voice they use, it makes me feel like I've been put down and I want to say something sarcastic back to them. Why do adults do that? I've even heard them say the same type things to other adults. Do adults mind being talked down to like that?"

TEEN TALK

I can only speak for one adult — me. I hate to be called a "sweet" name by a stranger. I have the same urge you do to say something sarcastic. I can usually resist the urge.

I tell myself that people who use those terms to people they don't now actually don't mean anything negative. It may be a habit they picked up, and they do it without thinking. They may not mind having people speak to them that way. Their line of thinking may be that calling someone these names is more polite than saying "hey you" when they don't know their real names.

Since this name-calling is usually done by strangers, the best strategy is to ignore it and be grateful you don't have to spend a lot of time with this person. If it's coming from someone you see regularly, you may want to express in a polite way that you prefer to be called by your given name.

Say your name loudly and clearly enough to be easily understood. If that doesn't work, you may have to grit your teeth and bear it or find ways to spend less time in the person's company.

needs it, some of the time. The happier and more secure each person feels, the more comfortable everyone else will feel. This "golden rule" is probably the most important rule for the family.

If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Snacks for children can be nutritious, healthy

Does providing healthy snacks for your children mean never serving potato chips again? Not necessarily, says a Mississippi State University nutrition specialist.

Snacks are important to a nutritionally balanced diet for children, says Melissa Mixon. For parents who worry about the fat and calorie content of after-school and between-meal snacks, she advises striving for balance and moderation.

"Unlike adults, children cannot expect to get all of their nutrients in three daily meals," she said. "Some snacks should be nutritious. But you don't have to completely eliminate cookies, candies and chips."

She offers some suggestions for healthy — and appealing — snacks:

- Make your own. For homemade treats such as oatmeal cookies, reduce fat by one-third by using applesauce or pear butter. Reducing sugar by one-third will not affect taste and will provide a lower-calorie cookie.

- Add raisins, grated carrots or grated zucchini to oatmeal cookies. "You can experiment with almost any recipe," Mixon said.

- Be smart. Many commercially prepared cookies and crackers offer low-fat varieties. "But low-fat does not mean low-calorie," she cautions. Commercial ice creams and yogurts come in low-fat versions, and, along with ice milk, offer a good source of calcium.

- Encourage your children to prepare healthy snacks. "Children can make a healthier pizza using a bagel or an English muffin," Mixon said. Have commercially prepared sauce and low-fat cheese on hand for toppings. "You can even have pre-browned ground beef and prepared vegetables for toppings in the refrigerator for them," Mixon suggested.

For another snack, try flour tortillas filled with sliced ham, mushrooms and cheese. "When these are rolled, they make excellent finger food," Mixon said.

- Revisit fruits and vegetables. Grapes can be washed and frozen for up to three months. For older children who are not at risk of choking, the frozen fruit makes unusual and tasty snacks. Or, slice and freeze banana sections. To serve, let children roll the frozen fruit in peanut butter and nuts.

Serve raw rather than cooked vegetables for finicky eaters. "Many children will eat raw carrots and broccoli served with ranch dressing or celery stuffed with peanut butter," she said.

- Keep nutrition in perspective. Look at the child's overall diet. Energy needs vary individually, given the activity level of the child.

- For children older than 2 years, in general, no more than 30 percent of calories should come from fat," Mixon advises.

To help achieve that goal, consider serving lean cuts of meats prepared by broiling, boiling or grilling. Steam vegetables and leave off the gravies, sauces and butter or margarine. Select low-fat dairy products whenever possible.

"My step parent's two children will be coming to spend the summer with us, and I'm already dreading it. They're the biggest brats you can imagine. They take over the household as if it were theirs, dominate every conversation and want all the family's money spent on them. Everyone's a nervous wreck after they've been in the house 10 minutes.

"They're a little younger than I am so I don't have to put up with them all the time, but they make life miserable when I do have to be around them. What can I do to survive?"

Can you talk with your birth parent about your concerns? If you could approach a discussion with the idea that you would like to help make their visit as painless as possible, your mom or dad would be less likely to get on the defensive, and together you might work out a survival strategy.

If no family rules exist, soon after their arrival might be a great time to put some in place. Let the children be a part of setting some guidelines for family living.

They may have some concerns that they've never felt they could express before. By having a say in the rules, they may feel a greater responsibility for living by them.

For a group of people to function together as a happy family, each person needs to have some
